

ABSTRACT

A resorbable medical implant is disclosed that includes one or more resorbable radiopaque markers. The resorbable radiopaque markers permit visualization of the location of the implant in a patient while reducing obstruction of tissue changes occurring in proximity to the implant. The resorbable radiopaque markers may include non-metallic and/or non-bone derived materials.